FOREWORD

As we seniors open our DIAL, we do more than open a yearbook. We open the door to poignant memories, memories that can never be relived. It is more than a keepsake. It is a composite picture of our progress — of silly things like initiations and stunt nights, entwined with wonderful experiences like investiture chapel and commencement; of proms and studies. For us, it will provide the link between the present and the past. It is for this purpose that we publish the DIAL.

To-

MAUDE B. GERRITSON

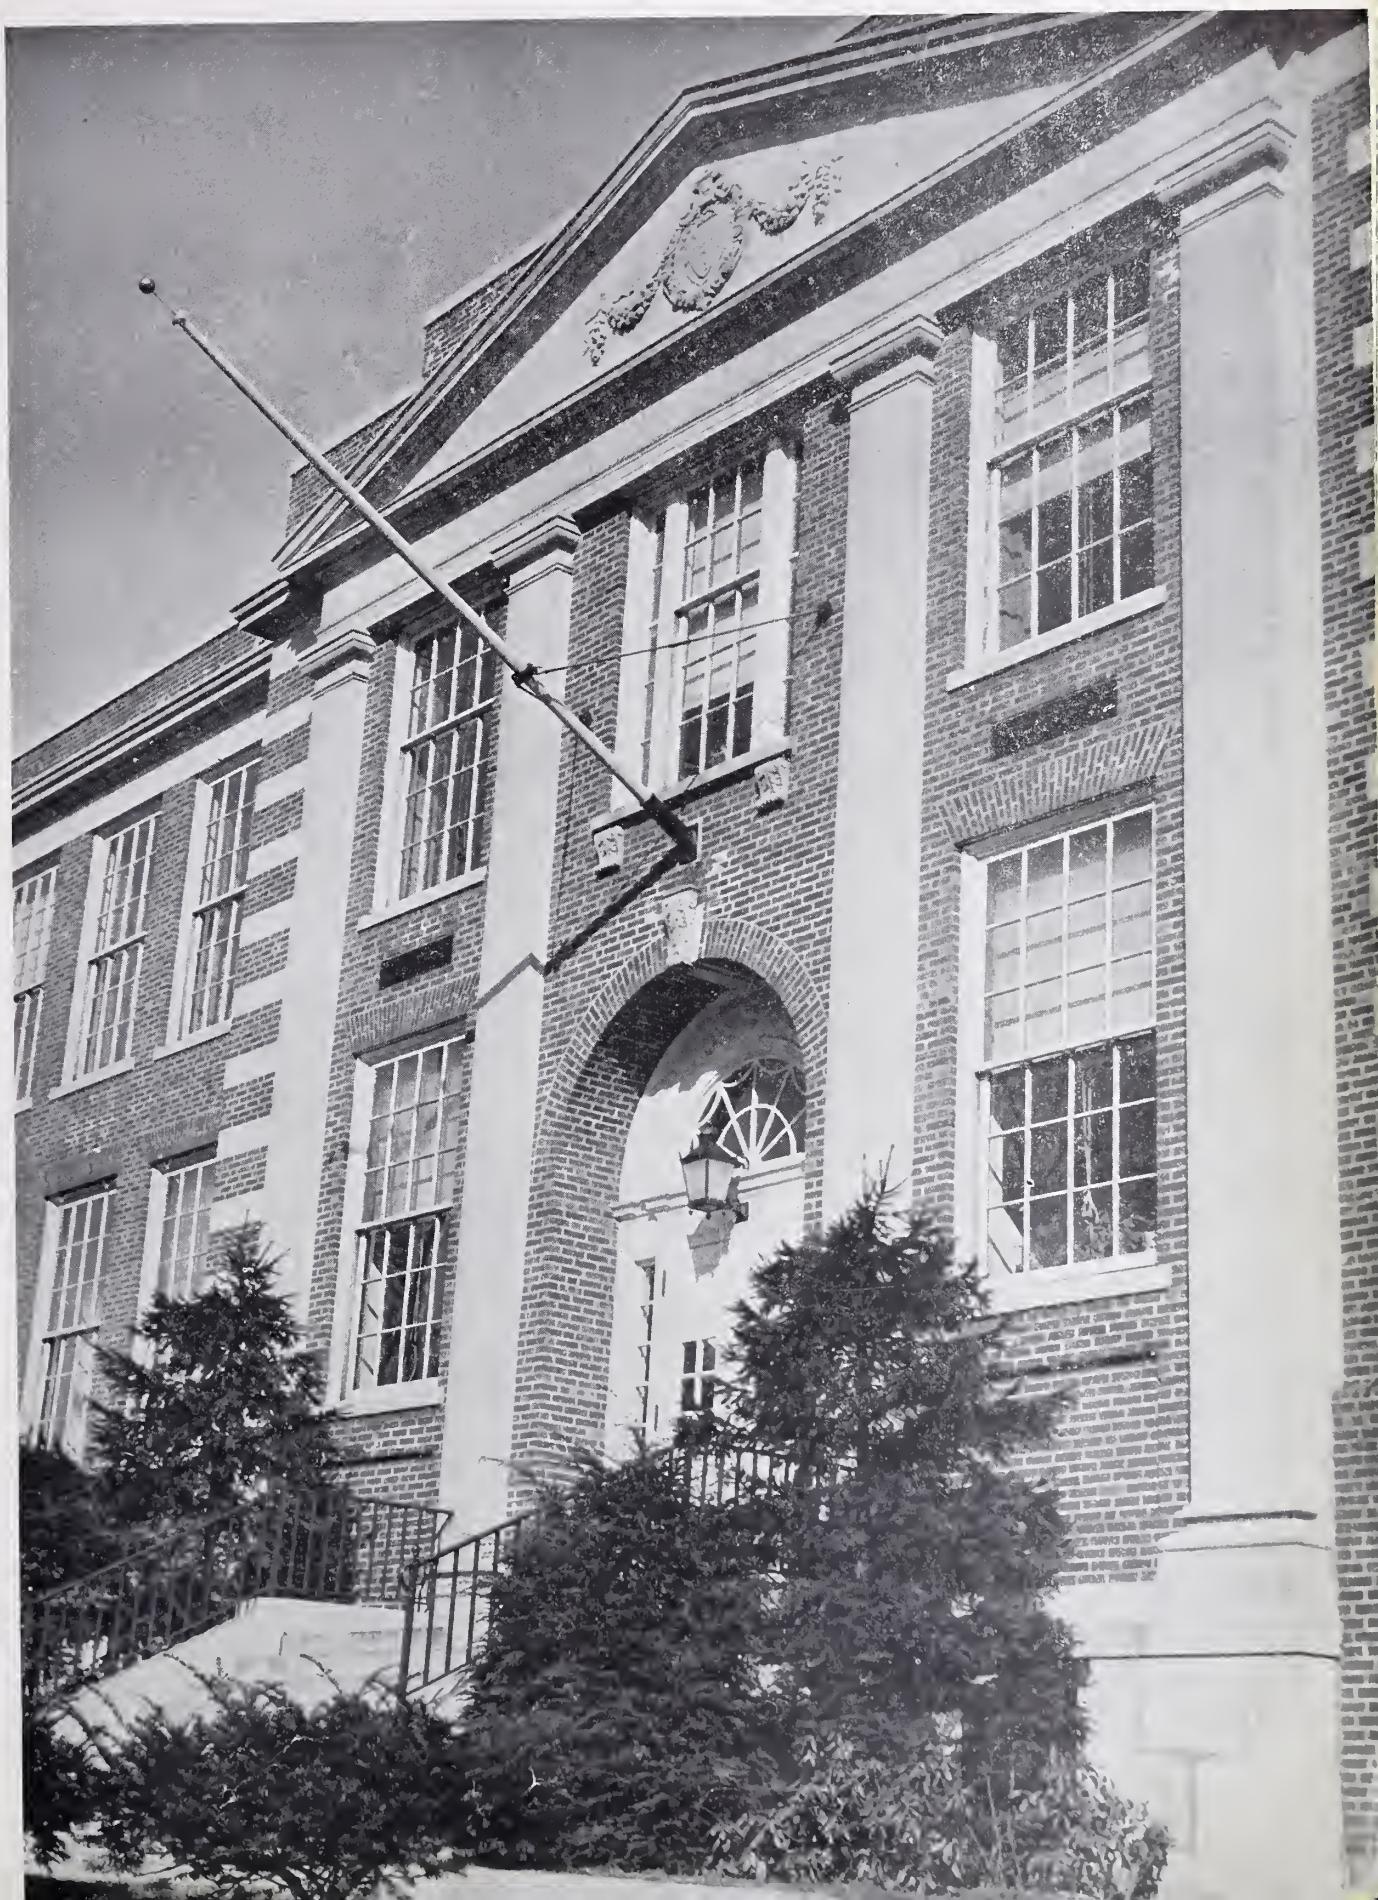

Thoroughness, a twinkling sense of humor, fairness, and a willingness to help others are the qualities that come to mind when we think of Miss Maude B. Gerritson, former instructor in the English Department. Miss Gerritson began teaching on the hill in 1916, where she has enjoyed the confidence and esteem of all her associates.

LUCILLE G. FRENCH

Combined with her professional ability, Miss Lucille G. French, former head of the Home Economics Department, possesses a charming friendliness that has endeared her to both faculty and students. Miss French deserves not only praise for selfless work in the college, but respect and affection for her sincere guidance given the students over a period of twenty-nine years.

Administration and Faculty

THE PRESIDENT

To the Forty-Niners,

My memory goes back to a night in December when you were gathered in Crocker Hall. It was the night of the senior carolling. Only a few moments before you had been cold and weary and wet after your long walk through a chill, rainy night, but now, having partaken of Miss Hall's bounty, you were warm and comfortable and filled with that wonderful Framingham spirit of Christmas.

I shall always remember the enthusiasm with which you sang your class song, "We're the Forty-niners." You were Forty-niners, indeed. Like the prospectors of a century ago, you were about to set out in quest of fortune.

The original Forty-niners sought gold and in the seeking traveled long distances and made tremendous sacrifices. You, too, are in search of material rewards. You will deserve them and you will, I'm sure, receive them. Unlike the old Forty-niners, however, you will not have to travel great distances, for success lies close at hand for those who are willing to make sacrifices to achieve it.

May you be constantly mindful of those other satisfactions that come from selfless service; from living and working in accordance with God's plan. This is life with a purpose. It is what really matters. It is the only thing that does matter.

Martin F. O'Connor

Evaluating the present, reviewing the past, and charting the future are the steps with which one circles every milestone. My wish for you is that at the milestone of Commencement these three steps will bring you encouragement, wisdom, and enthusiasm, for then you may follow the road ahead with confidence that it leads to deep satisfaction.

" . . . the road that leads away leads back."

It has been said that F.S.T.C. promotes one of the most friendly and informal relationships between faculty and students that exists on any campus. We are proud of this reputation, but when it comes to the departure of faculty friends, we find the parting more sorrowful than sweet. This year the college has lost four members of its staff who have gone to new fields of service, or who have retired from the teaching profession.

Mrs. Lay, who possessed a gentle, modest manner, proved to be very friendly and cooperative during her stay at the college. She was a member of the faculty during the interim between Mr. Kenny's departure and Dr. Alice Glover's arrival.

GRACE V. ROWLAND

We shall always remember Miss Grace Rowland's friendliness, her sincere interest in our personal welfare, and a kindness that extended to everyone on the hill.

We regret the departure of Mr. George Kenny, whose patience, charm, and understanding, deepened by his keen sense of humor, made him a favorite figure on the hill.

GEORGE KENNEY

In Memorium

It is with sincere sadness that we note the passing of Miss J. Hester Rust, beloved teacher of home economics. Miss Rust joined the staff of faculty at the college in 1941, where she showed a special interest in students and their activities, until illness forced her to resign in 1948. Courage, optimism, loyalty, and a true sense of friendliness were the qualities in her personality which have influenced our professional and personal lives.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS

Struggling, bewildered, we trudged up the hill,
Freshmen bent to the dominant seniors' will.
Our pigtailed heads bowed, and our weak knees bent
We followed each rule that the "great ones" had sent.

Our docility short lived, soon we emerged
Sophisticated sophomores, on whom eyes converged.
Our highlight was May Day with grand court and queen,
Our "Orpheus and Eurydice," a pageant to be seen.

Of course Junior Week-end was "the thing" junior year,
And unlike our exams, to be faced without fear,
A banquet, the theater, a picnic, and then best of all,
Our dance, with cats atop pumpkins pinned on the wall.

Finally, we were seniors in solemn caps and gowns.
We had reached the climax of our smiles and our frowns —
Yet with gay thoughts of the prom, Class Day, and Commencement
A sharp twinge of nostalgia sapped the root of our contentment.

Confidence, real comradeship, and a bubbling spirit seem to characterize these Seniors. They felt the pride of Investiture Chapel, and immediately asserted their new-found authority by conducting Freshman Court. The year had an undercurrent of climax, which seemed to attach itself even to everyday things, giving them special significance. The knit of friendships was woven even more closely — it was good!

As the day of graduation drew closer, joking and bravado were common, and yet each girl had an occasional feeling of homesickness, an occasional gnaw of apprehension about the future and "far away places" . . . The Senior dinner dance, class day, and commencement are special pages in a book crammed full of memories that make the "forty-niners" symbolic with "the hill."

CLASS HYMN

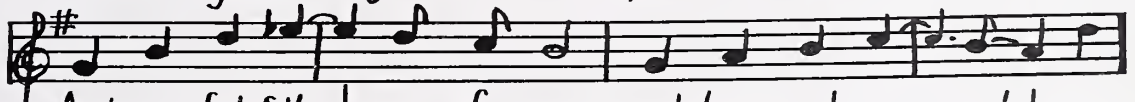

Music—K. Sergenian
Words—A. Murphy

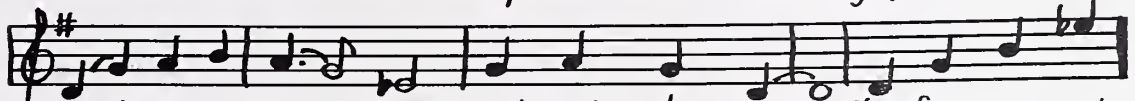

Lift up your hearts un-to truth and truth will guide you.

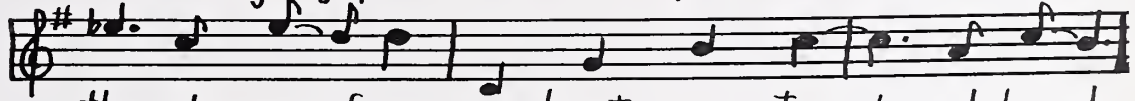

Hold high our great i-deals your whole life through,

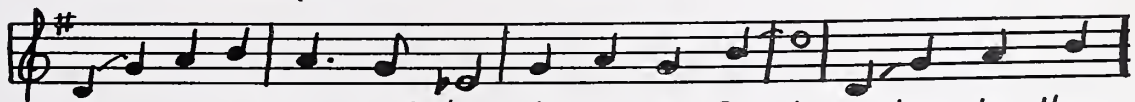

And so ful-fill lives of peace and hope and joy and love.

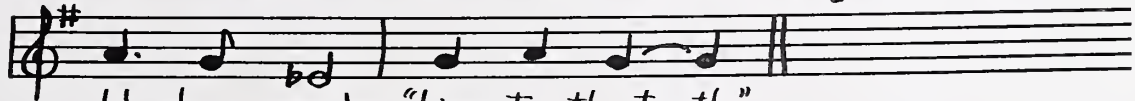

We have a glory proud untouched by time. Tho fortune smile tho she may frown our hearts are staunch and loy-al.

Our courage firm will be when we go for-th guided by those old dear words, "Live to the truth."

Underclassmen

The practice teaching, the work shifts at Crocker and, again, the unit folders — necessitated the brief respite from toil — Junior Week-end! These Juniors loved it; and returned to the busy fun of cook shift, the thrill of being labeled as a "real" teacher. But don't think their activities stopped here — the Junior Prom was yet to come. The Copley Plaza gave the proper setting for the selection of their queen, and this May Prom still provides happy memories for every girl.

D I R E C T O R Y

These young "sophists" suffering from acute organic chemistry and geography units still found plenty of time for fun — a picnic with the freshmen, and that special record hop! They truly felt the unity of their class, when they all worked together, behind stage and on stage, to produce their intriguing and unique May Day. The ultra-modern adaptation of the theme, "The Coming of Spring," was symbolized by the use of effective intepretation of the arts of choral speaking and modern dance.

DIRECTORY

The happy-go-lucky freshmen came through their initiation routine with flying colors. They recuperated just in time to enjoy the fall activities with the elite (?) upper classmen: a hike with the sophomores, a party with the juniors, and finally a tea with the seniors and faculty — they were now a part of the hill. They banded together to put on their stunt night, and, this year, undertook the additional responsibility of presenting the Annual Class and Club Council Supper. They proved their mettle and are now ready to assume their role as sophomores.

STUDENT CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

In some countries, when a difference of opinion arises, the nonconformists are immediately silenced. Such is not true on the F. S. T. C. campus. Since the college has always promoted a democratic attitude, it is only natural that students should find this exemplified in the search of faculty and students for better college living, the Student Cooperative Association. Among its many services, the Student Coöp provides freshmen with the ever-serviceable Handbook, the faculty and students with entertaining sportsmanship on Field Day, and the entire college with the first informal dance of the year.

"Justice, Equality, Fraternity" may well be the motto of the Judiciary Board, since this division of the Student Cooperative Association exemplifies these ideals in its administration. Difficult decisions about disciplinary problems are reached after discussion, in which the board puts the greatest good for the greatest number first. The board, presided over by Student Government's first vice-president, is comprised of one sophomore, two juniors, two seniors and a faculty advisor.

THE MART

S. Bellows, N. McCaffrey, N. Cooney, B. Aries, B. Lavery, J. Mahaney, J. Lewis

Curious freshmen enter the Mart only to leave as satisfied customers. Why, it has everything! Convenience, courteous salespeople, a variety of merchandise, and even credit, allowed at the end of the week—or at the beginning of it, for that matter. From luxuries like notebook paper and art supplies, to essentials like F.S.T.C. animals and cigarette cases, the Mart is indispensable to the busy college "gal."

The Class and Club Council, a branch of the Student Cooperative Association, aids in maintaining a fair and democratic system of solving any problems common to the classes and clubs. One of the many practical services the C.C.C. performs is the preparation and publication of the Activities Calendar which charts college functions from registration to commencement. The council is composed of the presidents of the classes and clubs, the Editors of the DIAL and GATE POST, and a faculty advisor.

Is your word your bond? Here on the hill, it is accepted as such. The Chemistry and Biology Council has developed an honor system that places responsibility on its student members to uphold that trust. The council is composed of thirteen girls and two faculty advisors, who make known the rules and regulations, and who decide on the treatment of any who violate its code.

LIBRARY COUNCIL

Row 1: P. Ginnetti, P. Olsen, Miss Pratt, N. McCaffery

Row 2: B. Nee, T. Healy, A. Bergman

The Library Council acts as a liaison group between the library staff and the student body, thus providing an efficient means of contact for both groups. The council aids the staff in preparing attractive and informative bulletin boards, as well as in collecting those long overdue books. (Remember?)

Manners — the do's and don'ts; customs; seating arrangements; meals — the likes and dislikes are all considered by the dining room council in cooperation with the dietitian. Their work is done quietly, but adds up to enjoyment in pleasant surroundings, all of which aids digestion. Doesn't it, home economists?

QUIET AND ORDER COMMITTEE

Row 1: P. Ginnetti, N. Boyle, B. Quillard

Is it in good taste? Is it prudent? Is it considerate? Before you have time to ask yourselves these questions, the Quiet and Order Committee has the answers for you. Their aims are to promote greater courtesy and cooperation on the campus, as well as better attendance at chapels and assemblies, aims which are achieved through guidance that is psychological and subtle.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Keeping physically fit through athletics is important. Developing good sportsmanship at the same time is equally important, so, at least the Athletic Association thinks. This Association recognizes the need for teamwork and fair play and gives prominence in its various activities to this phase of college living.

With these aims in mind, it is only natural that the Athletic Association should sponsor the friendly competition of Harvard-Yale week end, and the laughing comradeship of stunt night.

The lithe lassies who spend their le'sure time interpreting the modern dance make sure that our time is well spent as we watch the beauty of free and coordinated rhythm, at the Annual Modern Dance Assembly. These interpretative artists meet once a week, and are often called upon to entertain at functions off campus.

DIETITIAN IMPRESSED WITH COLLEGE GIRLS

Miss Frances Townsend of Calais, Maine, is the new dietitian. She was very pleased with the beauty of the campus which she said "looks like so many pictures of I have seen. The ivy and the foliage are beautiful."

Miss Townsend is a graduate of Springvale, Maine and attended university in Detroit, Michigan. She was a member of the Army medical corps during the last war and served two years at Fort MacClellan, Alabama.

She has done hospital work and is taking her first college work. She is very impressed with college students and college girls very friendly.

Mr. Plouffe Takes Over As Faculty Member

"We haven't decided whether he is either an English literature professor or a Big League baseball player." These were the words of Mr. John Plouffe, when asked about his four-week old son, Gawaine. Mr. Plouffe is taking the place of Miss Sparrow who is on a sabbatical leave. He was impressed with all the girls on the campus because formerly he had been working with veterans.

English Professor Is a Graduate of Holy Cross

Mr. Plouffe is a graduate of Holy Cross college, attended Boston university and is working on his doctorate at Syracuse university. He was a gunner in the U. S. Army Air Corps during the war. He and his family are living in Ashland.

MANY CLUBS ON HILL OFFER ACTIVITIES FOR ALL INTERESTS

Although freshmen are not permitted to join any of the clubs on the hill until the end of the first quarter, November 12, they are urged to attend at least one meeting of the various clubs. These meetings are held at the club hour, 4:15 on subsequent Tuesdays as scheduled on the Activities Calendar.

Services for Miss J. Hester Rust, until recently a member of the college faculty, were held at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, October 15, in the Congregational church of Manchester.

Miss Rust joined the Framingham faculty in 1941 as a teacher of foods in the Household Arts department, and until illness made her resignation necessary in 1948, she was prominent not only in college activities but in activities in the town of Framingham.

During these years she served as adviser of the Louisa A. Nicholas Home Economics club and as a class adviser, she was chairman of the

The Y.W.C.A. provides a program of activities that will promote better understanding and cooperation among girls, regardless of race or creed. This program was established as a result of information gained from a recent F.S.T.C. student-interest survey. Among its contributions to life on the hill is the presentation of Framingham clergymen of all faiths, as guest speakers in a series of interesting chapel talks, and the presentation of four informal discussion groups on topics of interest to club members. The inspirational Sunrise Service, and Moonlight Mood Dance always leave happy memories and anticipation for another year.

The A'Kempis Club, a member of the National Newman Federation of Roman Catholic Clubs, provides the link that unites college and church living. In his weekly instruction meetings, the spiritual advisor of the club, Father Sweeney, has inspired in the members a fervent faith, a deep understanding, and a human tolerance through his own experiences, knowledge, and humor. The attendance at the Communion Breakfast and first Friday masses, shows the spiritual strength of the club, while the success of the club's "Christmas Belle Ball," held this year in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Statler, and the Mother-Daughter Tea show its social prominence.

The whole is equal to the sum of its parts, say the mathematicians, but they haven't heard our Glee Club! An unknown quantity — will you call it "x," or "Mr. Gilday"? — makes one feel that here the whole is far greater than the sum of its parts. On such memorable occasions as the Candlelight Service, the spring concert, the Boston Pops, and commencement, the college and its friends enjoy the beauty achieved through the color, harmony, and tone of the Glee Club voices.

If Saint Peter lends an ear to Tuesday morning chapels, he probably has a niche in heaven all ready reserved for the F.S.T.C. choir. The marked versatility this select group displays delights its audience at the Candlelight Service, morning chapels, and evening concerts.

Footlights! Curtains! Photographer! The house lights are dimmed, and on stage you see beauty to match that of Bergman or Bacall; ability to rival that of Olivier or Welles! As a result of many painstaking rehearsals, the plays aspire to a professional status that produces an applauding and enthusiastic audience each year. Beyond providing an opportunity for dramatically-inclined girls to act, the Fine Arts Club provides an opportunity for the girls who enjoy the excitement of the theater to do behind-the stage work; work with props, cues, lights and costumes.

DORMITORY LIFE

Webster would hardly agree, but to the F.S.T.C. girls dormitory living may be defined as a "myriad of experiences." It means (faculty please turn the page) buzzing into a pal's room when you "just don't feel like studying"; being dressed by the generous girl in the wing when a special date pops up; working out a history unit when you'd rather be eating cheese and crackers — or perhaps while you're eating cheese and crackers. It means, too, that you have to grow — learn the rules of give and take, thinking of others before yourself. It means you don't fly off the handle when your friend gets a run in your nylons, that you do discover broader meanings to words like "tolerance," "compromise," "understanding," "generosity," and "friendliness." No, Webster probably wouldn't agree, but then he didn't "live" in F.S.T.C.

COMMUTERS CLUB

Row 1: R. Concannon

Row 2: N. Marsh, Miss Hunt, A. Delaney, M. Fitzgerald

As the bus streaks by and the commuter thinks of her class, she wonders where the truth lies in the lines, "They also serve, who only stand and wait." Perhaps the Commuters Club does not explain this allusion, but it does understand the various problems of the commuter, and alleviates as many of these as possible. The officers and faculty advisor also plan social functions for the commuters, the most important of which is the festive Christmas Banquet.

Through the quiet of the fashion show, you can hear in whispered awe, "My! Did she make that?" or at the annual May Supper, "Oh, this tastes good!" echoes around the hall. To provide information and professional contacts in the field of Home Economics, is the aim of the club that is carried on through its functions. The club sponsors stimulating programs with speakers from various fields that are invaluable to the future Home Economists. Through an international program, the club endeavors to broaden understandings and values of international fellowship. This year the club featured the Mardi Gras, a ball spiced by the international flavor of costumes, flags, and pastries from Argentina, Sweden, Germany, England and other foreign countries.

Oscar's Floating Show

Planning, rehearsing, and whispered giggling behind locked doors, contribute to make Stunt Night one of the most popular and anticipated activities on the hill. The students and faculty, using all their wit and ingenuity, vying for top honors, produce more laughs than any current Broadway comedy. This year was no exception.

STUNT NIGHT

Although this was the first time the freshmen tossed their hats in the ring on Stunt Night, they looked like veterans. Recall the dialogue and dancing of the ridiculous Russians (when they Russia'd through two of the Seniors' jokes, no less), the pantomime and clowning through the darkie scene—and begorra—in one of those scenes the rogues had brogues. Better watch out for them next year!

The clever sophomores had a calendar full of wonderful ideas—and such originality! How did these gals do it? Their Hallowe'en skit was intriguing. Will you ever forget the witches' brew to make the perfect man? Hmmm—wonder how good a memory the male faculty members have.

Those Juniors are the smoothies! What a background they had. A bevy of beauties to add color and song to a peppy minstrel show. Those end men performed like clockwork (in fact, they shamed many clocks I've seen). As for the poor, poor dietitians and teachers—they're overworked! Write to your senator today.

The Seniors put on a Showboat with Skipper Oscar at the helm, that was really something to behold. Say, do they really have girls, tramps, ballet dancers and pickaninnies aboard? Sawing a girl in half isn't seen every day either—or was that the cause of all the commotion? All this plus the rescue of two burning maidens meant fun for everyone.

With no intention of plagiarizing Lewis Carroll's work, the faculty presented "Alice in Framingland." Alice's dream took on the proportions of a nightmare as she and the rabbit went to the Mad Hatter's Tea Party. The parody continued in slapstick fashion to include the lawn party with the King and Queen of Hearts and a riotous finale.

CLASS SONG

We're the forty-niners, loyal and true
To our fair college, we'll fight for you.
Like the forty-niners who won their gold
Our numerals will stand out both brave and bold.

When we leave our college — from now,
With fondest memories, we will be endowed.
Friendship, wisdom, courage, with us we'll take
To brighten the future that we hope to make.

A FRIENDLY INVITATION
from
THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

Dear Graduates of 1949:

The Alumnae Association congratulates you upon your graduation.

Happy days such as those which you spent at the "college on the hill" may still continue through your membership in the Alumnae Association.

For fun and friendship join a Framingham Club where you will carry on the Framingham traditions.

OPEN MONDAYS 9:30 to 8
OTHER DAYS 9:30 to 5:30

I wish to record my appreciation for all the assistance rendered by Agnes R. Bourque '49 in the assembling and setting up of this DIAL; as well as to Mrs. Ruth R. Herring and Miss Maude B. Gerriton for their invaluable aid.

In addition I wish to thank all my staff and all the girls who so diligently typed and solicited ads, for without them this book never could have been published.

To Armands, the Folsome Engraving Company, and the Peabody Master Printers I am especially indebted for their very wonderful cooperation and excellent workmanship.

Sincerely,

MILDRED MILLS,
Editor-in-Chief
